The Finest Body of Men. The finest large body of men that I ever saw was the 24th United States colored infantry. I doubt very much if that regiment could be equalled from a physical standpoint by any other regiment in the world. The negro physically is a pretty good man. I have seen negro longshoremen in some of the cotton shinning ports in the of the cutton shipping ports in the south perform some prodigious feats of strength, and I have seen some in railroad construction camps with the strength of apes and some of them apparently over 60 years old. I remember one great big, black glant who was without a doubt the strongest man that I have ever seen, and I have seen Sandow, Jeffries and many others—A writer in the Chicago News.
